

ELEVENTH DAY SHOWS NO IMPROVEMENT IN POPE

His Holiness Is Very Weak This Morning, and Growing Worse.

CARDINALS READY

They Have All Been Summoned to the Vatican To Be Ready for the End.

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.)
Rome, July 14.—Pope Leo this morning had a long conference with Cardinal Rampolla and asked to have the Franciscan benediction. Cardinal Tuto, a Capuchin, fulfilled the office. His holiness recited the commiseration and gave the apostolic benediction to the whole Franciscan order.

Report at Dawn
Rome, six a. m.—The dawn of the eleventh day of the pope's latest illness found the prelate hovering between life and death. The night had been a sleepless one at the Vatican. His holiness had no entirely lucid moments, part of the time being in a state of coma. This morning after the bulletin was issued that he would live another day it was also announced that this would be brought about by the patient's wonderfully efficient heart action. Cardinal Machi on leaving the sick chamber said: "It is painful to see the holy father. He is only a shadow. His resistance of death is a miracle."

Rome.—Official bulletin this morning reads: "Up to eight o'clock this morning no change was observed in grave conditions stated yesterday evening. His holiness' pulsation is 92, respiration 30, temperature 36.5 centigrade."

(Signed) Lapponi, Mazzoni.

Stays in Bed.

All day Monday he did not leave his bed. Once or twice he has expressed a desire to sit still for a time in his favorite arm chair by the broad, sunny window of his chamber. But his doctors have pointed out to him now serious would be the effect of such an effort, and it is doubtful, even had he made the attempt, that he could have crossed the room or even risen from his couch.

The dying pontiff has himself expressed the opinion that he will live until Thursday.

Expects Death Thursday.
"If I am to die from this illness," he said, "I feel that I shall expire on Thursday, the feast day of the Carmelite Madonna, whom I especially worship."

The presentiment is remarkable inasmuch as it coincides in a certain manner with the prophecy made in the twelfth century by St. Malachy, the bishop of Armagh, who predicted that Pope Leo would be succeeded by a pope symbolizing the motto, "Ignis Ardens" (burning fire).

The Carmelite Madonna is the patroness of the Carmelite order, which attributes its origin to the prophet Elijah, who ascended to heaven in a chariot of fire. It is further significant that Cardinal Gotti, who is looked upon as Pope Leo's most likely successor, is a member of this order.

The doctors, however, do not share his holiness' belief that he will last even until Thursday.

Result of Overexertion.

"While there's life there's hope," was all Dr. Lapponi would say when questioned concerning his patient's condition.

The physicians incline to the view that the relapse is the result of overexertion Sunday, when his holiness was so much better that he insisted on receiving several visitors, participating in the celebrating of mass, and sitting for some time in his chair by the window.

Monday he had planned to receive three more of the cardinals, but the appointment was canceled and no one was admitted to the sick room. His holiness himself realizes, in his lucid moments, that his condition is desperate and does not resist, as he did, these arrangements in his behalf.

Vitality Diminishes.

Never before has his weakness progressed so fast. For the first time since his illness he has asked to have the shutters almost closed, as the light hurts his eyes, and at the same time, contrary to his custom, he begged to be left as quiet as possible.

Another noteworthy symptom of his weakening condition was the docility with which he took his medicine and nourishment. Previously, indeed during his whole life, Pope Leo has been against the prescriptions of doctors or anything which had the aspect of being forced upon him. His feeling of fatigue and indifference was interpreted as a sign that his vitality was fast diminishing.

Change for the Worse.

The change for the worse in the pope's condition began to be perceptible about 12 o'clock Sunday night.

Up to that hour he had been sleeping peacefully. When he awoke, however, he seemed considerably agitated. The periods of uneasiness grew more frequent and the patient's suffering more acute as the morning advanced.

The physicians soon saw that the condition of his holiness' kidneys was much worse. The diminution of certain elements in the secretion led them to fear that the patient's system was approaching a state of dissolution and their expressions were serious as they left the sick chamber for a brief consultation.

Mental Confusion.

Later in the morning the pontiff was attacked with extreme giddiness, the result, in Dr. Lapponi's opinion, of cerebral weakness. The patient suffered a kind of mental confusion, during which he evidently lost consciousness of his surroundings, and believed that he was beholding a vision.

He explained afterward that he seemed to see an undefined shadow moving about the room and slowly approaching his bed. At this the pope became greatly agitated, crying to his valet, Pio Centra: "Pio! Pio! Who is it? Who is it?" Dr. Lapponi and Centra hurried to his bedside and soon succeeded in tranquillizing him.

Strong stimulants were resorted to, and his holiness revived. Toward noon the pope began to sink again. His holiness continued to decline during the afternoon and toward evening Prof. Rossoni left his sick bed to be present at the examination.

Patient Is Feverish.

The patient grew weaker and weaker through the evening, and at midnight there was a return of the fleeting visions and of painful agitation on his holiness' part. Hypodermic injections of salt water were administered, but the pope continued to sink rapidly. All his relatives were summoned, but he was hardly able to recognize them.

Shortly after midnight he fell into a condition of partial unconsciousness—half sleep and half coma. He was exceedingly restless and the heat of the body very high.

THE CONSPIRACY WAS MYTHICAL

Cuban Revolution Was a Bogus One, Gotten Up for Notoriety's Sake.

Havana, July 14.—Leading veterans among those who are agitating for the payment of the army have published a manifesto stating that some fifty hungry, ignorant men proposed to betray the republic by declaring a rebellion at Guanabacoa, but that the veterans, hearing of the plot, persuaded the men to abandon it. The manifesto then points out how patriotic the veterans were in doing this.

A prominent official says that after a careful investigation of this alleged threatened rising and reported attack to be made on the palace and President Palma seized, he is convinced that the whole story was concocted by the veterans themselves, one of their number betraying the alleged plot to the government by prearrangement with his comrades, the idea being to frighten the government.

Government officials believed for a time that the story was true, but they, not at all frightened, took strong precautionary measures which would have led to disastrous results to the self-styled plotters had they attempted to carry any of their reported schemes into effect.

TO EXCLUDE ALL FROM MANCHURIA

St. Petersburg, July 14.—According to the newspaper Novikol, published at Port Arthur, Russia has informed China that she is compelled to exclude foreigners from Manchurian ports owing to the presence of Englishmen and Americans, who, in disguise are engaged in espionage. Russia, according to the paper, promises to open the ports six years hence, when the country has been tranquilized and settled.

RUSSIA TO HAVE A BOYCOTT LIST

May Diplomatically Black List Those Jews Signing Petitions to Government.

Washington, D. C., July 14.—It is understood that Russian purposes to blacklist in a diplomatic way those Americans who sign the Kishineff petitions. Informally it is said the department of state will be given to understand that any person attaching his name to the petition will not be acceptable to the Russian government in any diplomatic capacity. Mayor Low of New York is said to be a signer. His name has been mentioned as a probable appointee at the end of his service to a Russian post. If Russia's intentions are carried out he would be persona non grata.

Havana, July 14.—President Palma yesterday sent a special message to the Cuban congress to the effect that on account of the seeming difficulty in raising the $35,000,000 loan for the payment of the army, which was authorized by a bill passed at the recent session, he recommended sending a special commission to the financial centers of the United States and Europe immediately for the purpose of negotiating the loan. The house approved the president's recommendation. The senate is not now in session.

ROOSEVELT IS NOT PLEASED

Has a Conference Over Kishineff Petition, with Committee Members Today.

DELAYS TOO LONG

The President Would Rather Have Matters Hurried Than Dragged Out as They Are.

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.)
Oyster Bay, July 14.—President Roosevelt today had a long conference with the members of the Bnai Brith committee composed of Oscar Straus, Leo Levi and Simon Wolf. The Kishineff petition was under discussion and from the hints dropped after the conference was over it is understood that the president is not pleased with the work done.

Gone Over Carefully

The entire subject was gone over carefully and the talk emanating from Russia was fully discussed. The president expressed his disapproval of the dilatory methods used by the committees in securing their signatures to the petitions and urged that more haste be used so that they not be delayed longer.

Something Definite

While nothing definite was given out this morning as to whether the petition would be sent or not it is expected that the present council has brought matters to a crisis and that within a week the petition will either be sent or the plan abandoned.

GERMAN LETTERS ARE MADE PUBLIC

Her Correspondence on the Tariff Questions Now Public Property.

London, July 14.—A white paper has been issued by the foreign office, giving the correspondence between Great Britain and Germany in connection with the German-Canadian tariff discussion. The dispatches cover the period from May 9, 1897, to July 8, 1903, but their text adds little to the statements by foreign office officials brought out in parliament from time to time. The general tone of the correspondence indicates a greater willingness on the part of Germany to discuss the question in a friendly way after Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's public advocacy of a retaliatory tariff policy. On June 27 Germany suggested an interchange of ideas, with a view to a friendly settlement. This suggestion was settled by Lord Lansdowne, although the British foreign secretary in closing his note reiterated Great Britain's refusal to admit Germany's right to treat Canada or any other colony granting special tariff concessions to the mother country as a separate customs territory to be made to suffer by retaliation for privileges granted to the United Kingdom.

REBEL FORT IS CAPTURED NEXT

The Venezuelan Forces Now Control Soledad, on the Orinoco River.

Soledad, Venezuela, July 14.—Soledad, which is a strategic position opposite Ciudad Bolivar, on the Orinoco river, has been taken by government troops. It is learned through despatches that General Gomez, before entering the valley of the Orinoco, defeated the revolutionists under General Antonio Paredes, who surrendered Puerto Cabello in 1899, and who subsequently was captured by the liberals near Irapa. General Gomez thus secured the safety of his rear guard. It is not believed that General Bolivar, who holds Ciudad Bolivar, will be able to resist the government's attack.

BRAVE WOMAN FOILS RELEASE OF MURDERER

Sheriff's Wife Drives Intruder From Jail With the Aid of a Revolver and a Bulldog.

La Crosse, Wis., July 14.—An unknown man late Sunday night entered the living rooms of the Whitehall jail, where Paul Winkie, the alleged murderer of James Campbell, an Arcadian, was confined, and made an attempt to release Winkie.

Mrs. Arthur Holmes, wife of the sheriff, heard the noise and leaped from her bed, and, grasping a revolver, unchained a bulldog in the corridor and stole along the hallway to the cellroom. Before she could fire there was a crash of glass and the man was gone.

A search has been instituted, and bloodhounds may be used to track him, but thus far he has eluded pursuit. Evidence of the use of instruments upon the locks and windows of the jail were apparent.

Mrs. Holmes was alone in the building with the prisoners.

Maud Gonne (Mrs. McBride) was among the demonstrators who continued the uproar until the lord mayor finally called in the police who cleared the hall. After a stormy sitting of four hours the motion in favor of the address was defeated by 40 to 37 votes.

SUDDEN GUST WRECKS TENT

Christian Endeavor Delegates in Denver Had an Exciting Experience Last Night.

MANY ARE INJURED

Probably Several Janesville Delegates Were in the Tent at the Time of the Accident.

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.)
Denver, July 14.—None of the members of the Janesville delegation to the great Christian Endeavor convention, now being held in this city, were injured in the collapse of the big tent last evening although many other visitors from Illinois and the east were sufferers. The accident occurred when eight thousand persons were listening to an able address. The wind struck the big tent full and coming in under the sides threatened to blow it entirely away. A. M. Ramsay, contract agent for the Chicago Telephone company, realized the danger and springing up called to all the men to grab the tent poles and thus hold the canvas up so that all might get out in safety. The injured numbered a score but none were so seriously hurt that any great apprehension is felt over their condition.

Women Faint.

In the excitement immediately following the collapse of the tent many women fainted and were extricated from perilous positions with much difficulty.

The injured: Miss Mary Ellis, Denver, bruised about body; Miss I. N. Johnson, Denver, badly bruised, fainted from fright; Allena Murdock, Denver, arm fractured; K. C. Patterson, Alamosa, Colo., head cut by electric lamp, had scalp wound; J. C. Peters, Alamosa, Colo., scalp wound and shock; Miss Powers, Trenton, Neb., knee injured, body bruised; Mrs. Thornburgh, Denver, had wound in forehead, serious; Miss Etta Ward, 1515 W. Taylor street, Chicago, large pole fell across back and badly bruised her.

Open Air Prairie Service.

Mrs. Winifred Sleep of Denver, who was in charge of St. Mark's hospital tent, telephoned the electric light company to shut off the current. This prevented any damage from the live wires that had fallen with the tent poles.

A feature that showed the religious nature of the participants was seen when the majority were extricated from the canvas folds. Led by an eastern delegate all gathered around in the open air and an impromptu praise service was held.

Sudden Gust of Wind.

The convention was in full progress at 4 o'clock, and although there were signs of rain and some wind blowing, no trouble was anticipated by the management. The sides of the tent were up to admit air, and this enabled the squall to lift up the big canvas as if it were a balloon. The gust of wind that turned the tent over came so suddenly that no preparation could be made to forestall the consequences.

Immediately the 8,000 persons were in a panic, which was heightened by the screams of hundreds of women. It was then that Mr. Ramsey sprang to a chair and called loudly on the men to hold up the canvas and catch the large supporting poles as they fell. Hundreds of men sprang to their feet and successfully carried out the Chicago man's suggestion and thus averted a calamity.

ORANGEMEN IN ANNUAL PARADE

Ten Thousand Enthusiasts March in the Belfast Procession Recently.

Belfast, July 14.—The Orangemen have celebrated their annual holiday in their customary way. About 10,000 men participated in the observance here. The entire police force was on duty and the troops were confined to barracks, so as to be ready in case of emergency. At Rostrevor, County Down, 1,700 police and soldiers were in the town and vicinity, which gave the place the appearance of being in a state of siege. The nationalists refrained from counter demonstrations.

The procession of orangemen here was attacked by nationalists in the afternoon and a free fight followed. There was an exchange of missiles, windows were broken and a number of policemen and civilians injured. The police restored order. Rioting also occurred at Carrick Hill.

Former Architect Marries: Charles Rawson, of Vicksburg, Miss., formerly an architect in this city, was married at Milton today to Miss Augusta Heine.

A large barn on the farm of Thomas McCormick, two miles north of Waterville, was destroyed by fire. The barn contained this year's entire hay crop, together with some machinery, all of which was lost.

PRESENT OUTLOOK IS VERY GOOD

HENRY CLEWS GIVES HIS OPINION OF STOCKS.

HE EXPECTS BANNER CROPS

Says the Financial Interests of the United States Are in Excellent Shape.

Midsummer quiet has prevailed in the stock market to an unusual degree. This general apathy of buyers does not require much explanation. Many are absent on vacations; some are recuperating from recent losses, a few have increased their holdings on the decline, and all are waiting for some fresh stimulus that will bring an upward reaction. There is some reason for expecting that a partial recovery at least is near at hand. It has been recognized for months past that money and crops, would be the dominating factors in the markets of 1903, and in the crop situation there has been a distinct improvement that sooner or later must exert an effect upon stock exchange values. The monetary situation has, of course, been greatly relieved and strengthened by the heavy liquidation of the last six months, the improvement in this respect being much greater than indicated by the weekly statement of the Associated Banks, or even by the returns of the national banks of the country, published in response to the last call by the Comptroller. The banking capital of the United States has not only been greatly enlarged during the past year, but there has been an important increase in circulation and the banks now have their resources under better control than for a long period. Perhaps the greatest strengthening in the monetary situation, has come from the payment of heavy foreign loans, at which no statistical record such as the weekly statement is available, and which consequently escapes attention except by the initiated. Our borrowings abroad, however, are a great many millions less than in 1901 and our ability to promptly redeem those obligations has vastly improved our credit abroad, a factor that will count in our favor in the future, for London already shows more partiality to make advances in American stocks. In the flood of pessimism which has lately broken loose, it is forgotten that curative forces have been quietly at work along with the decline; the injured being still occupied with their own bruises, and the uninjured naturally gaining confidence slowly after the shock of about thirty to forty points decline. Nevertheless, the cure has been going on just the same, and is likely to show tangible results when other conditions favor. There is now a distinctly better feeling among those who control the money market, and fear of extreme stringency during the coming fall is much less acute. Beyond possibly the usual firmness, and activity witnessed during the crop moving period there is likely to be little disturbance; while the limited volume of speculation in stocks, and the less capital required to carry them makes pressure from that quarter more remote than usual. This explains the absence of concern at recent gold exports. Gold usually goes abroad at this season, and a slight advance in money rates, would quickly stop the efflux; besides we always producing gold in large sums, and the annual Klondike is now beginning to arrive.

When anxiety concerning the money market is fully removed then the key to the situation will be the harvest. If this proves satisfactory we are sure of a partial recovery from recent depression, if not another year of general prosperity. Just now all advances concerning the crops are of a most encouraging nature. A large wheat crop and good demand for the same are practically assured. Corn is reported progressing rapidly under highly favorable growing weather. Damages from floods have been infinitesimal compared with the great advantage of abundant rains; while late cotton and late corn are both rapidly making up for lost time. Six or seven good growing weeks remain and nothing short of a second serious drought—something unknown in a single season—can prevent a good harvest. Of course there is danger of early frost; but this is no greater than usual, and the chances of escape are certainly even. To those who calculate upon short crops therefore, the chances are decidedly adverse. The farmer perhaps can afford to be a pessimist, as he usually is, for nature regulates his production, and he wins, whether his prophecies be right or wrong; but the merchant, the manufacturer and the speculator are obliged to balance chances with greater accuracy and freedom from all prejudice.

Since crop conditions are more favorable, the principal uncertainty to be considered is a possibility of a further liquidation caused by the disturbing effect of the cotton corner, and the international situation as revealed by Russia's aggressions in Manchuria. The latter deserve closer attention than hitherto given. It is apparent, our government is alert to the importance of pressing the open door in China and the integrity of that vast empire as a future market of immense value to the United States. Russia's designs upon Manchuria with her established policy of rigid exclusion are a direct menace to the future commercial and industrial interests of the United States, and nobody better appreciates this fact than our astute Secretary of State Mr. Hay. There are plain rumblings of friction between this country and Russia, who evidently fears an inevitable domination of the Pacific but they need cause no special anxiety, and certainly cannot prove of serious consequence to the stock market. Russia is financially weak, having committed herself to unprofitable and industrious schemes on a stupendous scale, almost to the verge of bankruptcy. She is in no condition to invite war with any first class power; the result of which would certainly be defeat and probably dismemberment of a loosely connected empire. There is, therefore, little or no danger of serious difficulty with Russia, and alarmist newspaper reports may be read with equanimity. The plain dealing and firmness of American diplomacy will probably accomplish what we desire without serious friction; so as a stock market factor the Russian incident should not receive undue weight; though it might easily develop sufficient importance to interfere with ordinary speculative movements. In the absence of unfavorable developments prices should soon begin to work gradually to a higher level, there being a number of good well seasoned railroad stocks that are an investment purchase on all decided declines. The industrialists, it need hardly be said, are not in high favor, the collapse of many of these and the fact that they are more susceptible to the effects of trade reaction, than the railroads causing more or less discrimination in favor of the latter. HENRY CLEWS.

ENCOUNTERS NAKED ELECTRIC WIRE

Otto Drafahl Falls from Pole and Is Injured—Touched Uncovered Wire.

Otto Drafahl was seriously injured by a fall from an electric light pole near the new post office. The accident occurred yesterday afternoon at about four-thirty o'clock. A live wire was the provoker of the trouble. As Drafahl, who is an employee of the Janesville Electric company, was descending from the pole on which he was working, and which is situated at the head of the alley near the interurban waiting room, his hand came in contact with a naked wire. The shock broke his grip on the pole and he fell to the ground, a distance of about twenty feet.

A pile of stones were located at the spot where Drafahl alighted, and after he had been taken in the patrol to the Palmer hospital and his wounds carefully inventoried, they were found to consist of a bruised hip, several internal injuries, and a fractured arm.

ENDEAVORERS ARE IN TOILS OF LAW

Technicality Gives Saloon Keepers an Opportunity to Strike at Opponents.

W. G. Wheeler, United States district attorney, and the Hon. John Winans of this city will probably appear in connection with an interesting phase of the recent Beloit saloon violation prosecutions. Throughout the crusade against the saloon keepers the Christian Endeavor union of Beloit has waged the strongest fight. On a technicality the saloon keepers have found ground to snuff the complaint, and hold their church opponents to answer to a charge of selling liquor illegally.

Acting for Clark Schurman, editor of "Citizenship," and one of the prominent endeavorers, H. D. Thomas purchased of Thomas Brannigan two bottles of beer, which he took to Schurman, receiving therefore the price which he himself had paid. After consultation with attorneys, among them Messrs. Wheeler and Winans, it is said that the saloon proprietors have decided to unite in a legal movement against Henry D. Thomas, on the ground of selling liquor without a license.

MOSQUITO BE KILLED OFF

NEWLY DISCOVERED PARASITE THAT DESTROYS THEM EASILY.

A BOON TO ALL CAMPERS

Great Relief from the Pest Is Now Assured by Special Experiment.

It will be more than pleasing news to many resident of Janesville and the summer resorts near to learn that a cure, or rather a preventative of the awful mosquito has been found and that in the future all the summer cottagers will have to do is to send to Washington and secure a few parasites that dearly love to eat the mosquito, in fact as dearly as that little pest delights to feast on humans and his troubles will be ended. It is more than a pleasing announcement and many a fair golfer of the Mississippi club who likes to rest between playing will greet the invention or discovery with applause. Low shoes and open work stockings can soon be worn with comfort and the deadly little mosquito will have to seek less civilized climes if he wishes to continue his operations.

The Discovery. Dr. Charles Stiles of the public health and marine hospital service, has made the discovery in the parasite world, which is considered by government savants of the greatest importance. The discovery is what Dr. Stiles has named "agamo mermis culicis," otherwise known as "mosquito destroyer." It is a parasite which kills millions of mosquitoes each year, and which, it is believed, under artificial propagation will prove far superior to any known way of ridding infested communities of these pests. Dr. Stiles not only has discovered the parasite but isolated it. All that now remains to be done by Dr. Stiles and his associates is to discover a rapid and inexpensive manner of propagating parasites in sufficient number for general use in marshes, ponds, and localities infested by these insects, and the "mosquito destroyer" will do the rest.

Parasites. Certain forms of intestinal parasites previously were found in mosquito larvae in India, Italy and Spain, but none was discovered in American mosquitoes, until Prof. John B. Smith, of Rutgers college forwarded to Dr. Stiles for examination two worms taken from the abdominal cavity, of New Jersey mosquitoes. One specimen was in a hardy condition. Dr. Stiles determined that both specimens were larval round worms belonging to the family of mermithide, or mermis paramermis. Dr. Stiles christened the parasite, "Agamo mermis culicis."

Notice. All grocery stores in Janesville will be closed all day Thursday, July 16th, on account of the grocers' picnic being held at Madison.

TRAMPS ARE FEW AT COUNTY JAIL

Warm Weather and Plenty of Work Keeps the "Bo's" Away from the City.

"There are few tramps taken at this time of the year," said Sheriff Appleby. "There are known that could be classed as vagrants in the jail now." There has been a scarcity of that class of criminals for the last two years. It is thought that the prosperous times, when work can be secured in almost every community, makes the tramps more or less ashamed to beg for a living, consequently they are not noticed so often as when times are slack.

In the warm weather they are not so numerous anyway as during the more unpleasant seasons of the year. Then, too, some of them, the jail affords a comfortable shelter and an easy time. At the county jail there are no "long time" men at present. There is one who is scheduled for a six months' visit, but the remainder are mostly sent there for a much shorter time, in many cases less than a month.

A man who has been sentenced for more than six months usually lands in the penitentiary.

The men in the Janesville jail get plain wholesome food, without much pie or cake. The dinner at noon is the principal meal and the greater variety of food is served at this time.

Notice. A full attendance is desired at the meeting of the Wis. Lodge, No. 14, I. O. O. F., at East Side Odd Fellows hall, Wednesday evening at 7:30. Every member is requested to be present.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Generally fair tonight and cooler tomorrow.

THEIR EYES OPENED

It is quite important therefore that the candidate for governor shall be a man capable of harmonizing the party and bringing all factions into line for the campaign next year.—Oshkosh Northwestern.

Much of the talk of "harmonizing the party" is the veriest rot and does not reflect credit on the men or the newspapers that indulge in it. It may as well be admitted now as at some future time that there are two elements in the republican party in Wisconsin, and that they will not and cannot be reconciled. One of these elements believes in the rule of the people. The other believes in the rule of the corporations. The governor is the leader of the former, and the irreconcilable stalwarts backed by the public service corporations and many federal office holders give to the latter whatever strength and standing it possesses as a political force.—The State, Gov. La Follette's political bulletin sheet.

The Northwestern, which up to a recent date always supported Gov. La Follette loyally and to some effect now argues that having been given the two terms in office which precedent Wisconsin dictates shall be accorded an executive, the governor should step down and out. It has discovered also that the governor is counselling revolution, an uprising of the people with a new declaration of independence, and it thinks the time is ripe for a mild but firm suppression of political agitation which may lead to a class war, followed by a business depression. The Northwestern has, therefore put itself in a fair way to be disliked by the reformers.

The Madison Journal is another paper that no longer believes the cant that has been dealt out as a new gospel of reform. Probably no man in Wisconsin contributed more to the success of Gov. La Follette last year than did Dr. Wilder, the editor of that paper. The sincerity of the governor, his purpose, and remarkable ability were apparently clearly demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Journal editor and he fought manfully for the cause he believed to be right. He, too, has been converted, for he now takes strong grounds against the continuance of Gov. La Follette in the office he now holds, for he no longer believes the governor is either sincere or unselfish.

The situation is the same as it was last year, except that Gov. La Follette is serving his second term. The Kansas speech in which the governor called for a new declaration of independence was no more revolutionary than was his Fern Dell speech of seven years ago, in which he announced himself the champion of one class of citizens—not of the interests of the whole people. The appointments under the state administration were then made, as they are now in the interests of the administration political machine. But the editors of the two papers have their eyes opened to the truth.

The time that must intervene before the opening of the next campaign should be devoted to spreading of information upon the subjects that will probably come up for debate at that time, and it is gratifying that the North-Western has called attention, as it has on several occasions lately, to the necessity of avoiding exaggerations of statement and of considering all the interests of the state as in a measure bound together and independent upon one another. When men representing practically all the capital invested in manufacturing ask to be heard upon any proposition it must be remembered that they, too, are of "the people" and that the people can rule only when all the people have a voice in the framing of measures to be enacted into statute law. It must be remembered also that the people have their money invested in corporations; that thousands of salaried employees depend upon those corporations for an opportunity to make a living, and that shippers and carriers of freight represent much more nearly the interests of the whole people than do the few lawyers in politics and other reformers who are demanding a revolution and a new declaration of independence.

The above is from the Milwaukee Sentinel which has been doing what it could during the last two years and more to impress these facts upon the citizens of Wisconsin, and it is pleased to note that the North-Western and Journal have determined to engage in the same line of work.

PRESS COMMENT

Milwaukee Journal: The only Dr. Wilder, of Madison speaks of politics as "them." The doctor's grammar's all right, too, he doubtless has reference to his own.

Appleton Crescent: Some of La Follette's advisers think that running for a third term for governorship will enhance his chances for the overthrow of Senator Quarles.

Superior Leader: Wisconsin may well be proud. A negro brute at Madison assailed two little white girls, and the citizens, though wild with indignation, maintained law and order. All honor to them!

Waupaca Post: This is the time of the year when the weed commissioner of the country district can find plenty to do if they so desire. Weeds cut down will not scatter seed and propagate nearly as badly, as if they are left a month or two without being touched.

Ashland Press: The postoffice department scandal shows that civil service reform is in order; also that there should be a general housecleaning in all the departments of the state ever so often. I would prevent scandals from creeping in and keep up the standard of civil service up to the highest point.

Fond du Lac Reporter: The determination of Judge W. P. Lyon, to retire from active life, and spend his remaining years in California takes from Wisconsin public life a man who has had a long and honorable career. He has filled the positions of trust bestowed upon him with credit to himself and the state and has earned the rest, that will now be his to enjoy.

Mineral Point Tribune: Charles Benton, of La Crosse has a novel plan to solve the problem of the equitable distribution of wealth. He directs his advice to the workingman who is urged to "work cheap, for the poor man for the well-to-do, but make the rich pay high wages." Mr. Benton does not explain how his plan will work out, but it would certainly, if tried have the effect of making property popular.

SAYINGS OF P. D. ARMOUR.

The trouble with a great many men is they don't appreciate their predicament until they get into the quicksand.

It is an easy matter to handle even congested controversies, where the spirit of the parties is right and honest.

HOT AFTER THE MURDERER

ROCKFORD POLICE VISIT BOWER CITY TODAY.

ARE SCOURING WISCONSIN

Chief of Police Bargren and Officer Golden Look Up Ole Olson, of Janesville Renown.

In following out every imaginable clue to the murderer of Dick Tebbetta, the Rockford newsboy, the Forest City police have turned their attention to Wisconsin.

Officer M. H. Golden has been especially detailed to make a thorough search of southern Wisconsin, and has visited Evansville, Madison, and other points. This morning Chief of Police Bargren of Rockford and Officer Golden were in this city on their way from Madison, where they had been collecting information regarding Ole Olson, a well-known character in Janesville police annals.

After Ole Olson
In addition to what the Rockford officers learned at the Capital City, Chief of Police Hogan was able to tell them much of Olson's history. Olson was twice sent to Waupun from this city. The charge in both cases was burglary, the first conviction occurring in 1890 and the second in 1896. A third time he was sent to the state penitentiary, a verdict being given against him at Madison in 1899 for an unmentionable crime.

May Be Murderer
In addition to these offenses Olson may have a longer record of which the officers are ignorant. Photographs of him were secured and the officers took them to Rockford where it may be possible to identify him as the man who was seen near the depot, and who attempted to induce small boys to accompany him.

NEW SECRETARY FOR ART STUDY

Former Chicago Company Stockholders Fill Vacancy at Meeting—Pease Forced To Retire.

At a meeting of the Art Study company's stockholders held in this city a change was made in the officers of the concern, caused by the sickness of the former superintendent of the Chicago plant.

I. S. Pease, the superintendent of the Chicago factory, was originally elected secretary and treasurer. A few days after the meeting at which he was chosen to the office his health failed him. He is now in a sanitarium in Michigan, seeking to regain his strength.

I. N. MacLean was elected to the office of secretary. Mr. Pease will retain his position as treasurer.

Richards will endeavor to be present during the meeting next week, but will be unable to go with the boys in the morning. The juniors who will represent the Janesville association are Roy Crissey, Wallace Mills, Elmer Droyer, Ellsworth Strang, Sterling Campbell. They expect to be away for several days and are looking forward to a most enjoyable time.

WOODMEN PLAN A BIG BANQUET

Will Entertain Many Camps—Project is in Infancy—To Materialize in the Fall.

In an indefinite fashion plans are being formulated for a grand session of the Modern Woodmen of America to be held next fall, when guests from many neighboring camps will be entertained in this city.

The project has been talked over by members of the camp, and will probably be carried through to a successful termination, although it is now too early to take any definite action.

A banquet, followed by a semi-formal program, is spoken of as a proper mode of entertaining the visitors from surrounding cities.

An attempt will be made to secure the presence of Major Hawes, the head clerk of the jurisdiction.

MANY ATTENDED TWO EXCURSIONS

TWELVE FULL COACHES WENT TO LAKE GENEVA.

WAS A FINE DAY FOR OUTING

Second Excursion Was to Dowie's City, by Lake Michigan's Shore.

This morning twelve coaches crowded with picnickers rolled out over the St. Paul road for Lake Geneva. It was estimated that fully nine hundred excursionists left on this train alone. The occasion was the union Sunday school picnic given by the churches of this city. Most of the crowd were made up from the congregations of the two Methodist churches, the Baptist, Congregational, and Presbyterian churches. Nearly every party took lunches with them to partake of later in the day under the green trees along the shores of beautiful Lake Geneva. The train left at 8:15 this morning and will return shortly after six tonight.

All excursionists had the privilege of free rides on the excursion steamers on the lake belonging to one company. The day was an ideal one to spend out of doors and the many row boats on the lake were in constant use.

Another Excursion
An excursion to Fort Sheridan and Zion City was also scheduled for today, but not so many took advantage of it, to visit the home of the Dowieites. Nearly a hundred left, however, over the North-Western road. At Fort Sheridan the excursionists were shown through the barracks, the hospital, the mess halls and the various other buildings connected with this, the largest military post in the country.

This afternoon the lace factories were visited as well as other points of interest in Zion City.

The trip, after leaving the town of Harvard, is a very pretty one, being through a region replete with charming scenery and beautiful landscapes. From Kenosha, along the shores of Lake Michigan to the fort is also picturesque.

LOCOMOTIVE TORE INTO A HAND CAR

St. Paul Yards the Scene of a Smash-Up—Engine Made a Merry Face.

This morning about six o'clock a handcar that had been used in moving ice down at the Y. track in the St. Paul yards was run into by an engine and badly smashed. The car was left at that place through mistake in the orders. The engine was coming around a curve at a fifty-mile clip and could not be stopped in time, or even slowed down before the hand car was struck. After the collision, the locomotive went fully three car lengths before it could be brought to a stop.

NEW TYPE OF LOCOMOTIVE

Two Monsters at Northwestern Yards Today—Being Shipped to Milwaukee.

Two big new engines en route to Milwaukee came into the North-Western yards this morning. They are to be used on Milwaukee passenger runs. These locomotives are of the largest types with "trailers," having two large drive wheels on each side, in rear of the drivers. By means of a lever the engineer can throw the greater part of the weight of the engine, either on the drive wheels or on the "trailers." In this way it is easier to control the train, especially when a heavy load is being drawn.

Team Which Took First Money at Baraboo Plans to Repeat Trick at Madison in October.

If hard work can do it, Canton Janesville, No. 9 I. O. O. F. will again carry off the first drill prize at the state encampment at Madison in October, duplicating their achievement of last year, at the Baraboo encampment. They have decided to go after the prize, and go after it with a will. The decision was reached at their last meeting.

The Resolution
Whereas, a team of fifteen did the work last year, which covered the Bower City Canton with glory, it is planned to increase the number to embrace the entire Canton.

Others Interested
Several Cantons in the state have set envious eyes on the prize, which is a cash gift from Col. H. J. Suttle, of Viroqua, and the locals will have a stiff fight to match their last years record.

Koeblin in Command
Capt. P. H. Koeblin will command the drill team, and drills will be held regularly from now on to the time of the Madison gathering, when the crack teams from all parts of the state will come together.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter I.—The story opens with Alfred Bishop, a Georgia planter, closing a trade of $5,000 in mill stock for 5,000 acres of mountain land. Mrs. Bishop and their son Alan object to the trade. Mrs. Bishop's brother, Abner Daniel, tells a story. II.—The sale over. Bishop boasts that his land is on a prospective railroad. Tompkins, the former owner, has just unloaded a tract of 2,000 adjoining Bishop's. III.—Bishop goes to Atlanta to see Lawyer Perkins, who told him about the railroad. He has been deceived. The old man is so cast down that he returns without seeing his brother William or his daughter Adele, who is at her uncle's in Atlanta. IV.—Bishop has bought 20,000 acres of mountain land in all and mortgaged his plantation. Abner tells Rayburn to consult Miller, a land speculator. V.—Miller tells Alan about a dance at Darley. Alan's sweetheart, Dolly Barclay, will be there. Frank Millhouse is attentive to Dolly. VI.—Dolly tells Alan that her father objects to his love quest. Barclay has also been caught on mountain land. VII and VIII.—Miller gives Alan cynical advice on love. Dolly's mother talks to her on her own love experiences. Dolly unhappy. IX.—Abner and Rev. Mr. Dole discuss religion. Pole Baker, the ex-moonshiner, whom Alan has reformed. X.—Abner goes to Barclay's, and Dolly talks to him of Alan. He tells Alan of his own sweetheart who died and he still loves her. Alan will hope and wait. XI and XII.—Alan goes to Miller with a project for a railroad to the land. He redeems Pole Baker from the prison gang. XIII.—Miller sends news by Dolly to Alan about his railroad project. She disputes Miller's cynical views of love. XIV.—Miller interests Tillman Wilson, president of the Southern Land and Timber company, in the mountain road. Loan of $25,000 arranged on deal finished with a verbal option for the company to take the land at $100,000.

CHAPTER XVII.

ABOUT a week after this transaction Rayburn Miller went to Atlanta on business for one of his clients, and while there he incidentally called at the offices of the Southern Land and Timber company, hoping to meet Wilson and learn something about his immediate plans in regard to the new railroad. But he was informed that the president of the company had just gone to New York and would not be back for a week.

Rayburn was waiting in the rotunda of the Kimball House for his train, which left at 10 o'clock, when he ran across his friend, Captain Ralph Burton of the Gate City guards, a local military company.

"Glad to see you," said the young officer. "Did you run up for the bull?"

"What bull is that?" asked Miller. "I am at the first of it."

"Oh, we are giving one here in this house tonight," answered Burton, who was a handsome man of thirty-five, tall and erect, and appeared at his best in his close fitting evening suit and light overcoat. "Come upstairs, and I'll introduce you to a lot of strangers."

"Can't," Rayburn told him. "I've got to leave at 10 o'clock."

"Well, you've got a good hour yet," insisted the officer. "Come up on the next floor, where the orchestra is, anyway, and we can sit down and watch the crowd come in."

Miller complied, and they found seats on the spacious floor overlooking the thronged office. From where they sat they could look through several drawing rooms into the ballroom beyond. Already a considerable number of people had assembled, and many couples were walking about even quite near to the two young men.

"By George!" suddenly exclaimed Miller as a couple passed them. "Who is that stunning looking blond? She walks like a queen."

"Where?" asked Burton, looking in the wrong direction.

"Why, there, with Charlie Penrose," "Oh, that one," said Burton, trying to think. "I know as well as I know anything, but her name has slipped my memory. Why, she's visiting the Bishops, on Peachtree street—a Miss Bishop; that's it."

"Adele—little Adele? Impossible!" cried Rayburn. "And I've been thinking of her as a child all these years."

"So you know her?" said Captain Burton.

"Her brother is a chum of mine," explained Miller. "I haven't seen her since she went to Virginia to school five years ago. I never would have recognized her in the world. My Lord, she's simply regal!"

"I haven't had the pleasure of meeting her," said the captain, "but I've heard lots about her from the boys who go to Bishop's. They say she's remarkably clever—recites, you know, and takes off the plantation negro to perfection. She's a great favorite with Major Middleton, who doesn't often take to the frying skin. She has been a big drawing card out at Bishop's ever since she came. The boys say the house overflows every evening. Are you going to speak to her?"

"If I get a good chance," said Rayburn. His eyes on the couple as they disappeared in the ballroom. "I don't like to go in looking like this, but she'd want to hear from home."

"Oh, I see," said Burton. "Well, you'd better try it before the grand march sweeps everything before it."

As Miller entered the ballroom Penrose was giving Adele a seat behind a cluster of palms, near the grand piano, around which the German orchestra was grouped. He went straight to her.

"You won't remember me, Miss Adele," he said, with a smile, "but I'm going to risk speaking to you anyway."

She looked up from the bunch of flowers in her lap and in a startled, eager sort of way began to study his face.

"No, I do not," she said, flushing a little and yet smiling agreeably.

"Well, I call that a good joke," Penrose broke in, with a laugh, as he greeted Miller with a familiar slap on the shoulder. "Why, Rayburn, on my word, she hasn't talked of anybody else for the last week, and here she—"

"You are not Rayburn Miller!" Adele exclaimed.

"You are not Rayburn Miller!" Adele exclaimed, and she stood up to give him her hand. "Yes, I have been talking of you, and it seems to me I have a thousand things to say and, oh, so many thanks!"

There was something in this impulsive greeting that gave Miller a delightful thrill all over.

"You were such a little thing the last time I saw you," he said almost tenderly. "I declare, you have changed—so, so remarkably."

She nodded to Penrose, who was exchanging himself, and then she said to Miller, "Are you going to dance to-night?"

He explained that he was obliged to take the train which left in a few minutes.

He saw her face actually fall with disappointment. The very gentleness of the expression pleased him inexplicably. "Then I must hurry," she said. "Would you mind talking to me a little while?"

"Nothing could possibly please me so much," said he. "Suppose we stroll around."

She took his arm, and he led her back to the rotunda overlooking the office.

"So you are Rayburn Miller?" she said, looking at him wonderingly. "Do you know, I have pictured you in my mind many times since mother wrote me all about how you rescued us from ruin. Oh, Mr. Miller, I could not in a thousand years tell you how my heart filled with gratitude to you. My mother goes into the smallest details in her letters, and she described your every word and action during that transaction in your office. I could tell just where her eyes filled and her throat choked up by her quivering handwriting. I declare, I looked on you as a sort of king with unlimited power. If I were a man, I'd rather use my brain to help suffering people than to be made president of the United States and be a mere figurehead. You must not think I am spoiled by all this glitter and parade down here. The truth is, I heartily despise it. I wanted to be at home so bad when I got that letter that I cried myself to sleep."

"You must not forget that your brother conceived the plan," Miller protested, "and that I only—"

"Oh, yes, I know Alan thought of it," she interrupted, "but without your experience and firmness it would have remained in his dear old brain till the Lord knows when. The idea of their being in debt was slowly killing my father and mother, and you came to their relief just when they were unable to bear it any longer. I'm so glad you thought of borrowing that money."

Just then a young man half a head shorter than Adele came up hurriedly. "Oh, here you are!" he exclaimed in a gasp of relief. "I've been looking for you everywhere. This is mine, you know—the grand march. They are all ready."

Adele smiled pleasantly. "I hope you'll excuse me from it, Mr. Tedcastle," she said. "I've just met a friend from home. I want to talk with him, and—"

"But, Miss Bishop, I—"

"I asked you to please excuse me, Mr. Tedcastle," Miller saw her face harden as if from the suzer of contempt that passed over it. "I hope it will not be necessary for me to explain my reasons in detail until I have a little more time at my disposal."

"Oh, certainly not, Miss Bishop," said the young man, red with anger, as he bowed himself away.

"What's society coming to?" Adele asked Miller, with a nervous little laugh. "Does a lady have to get down on her knees and beg men—little jump-jacks, like that one—to excuse her, and to put them into a good humor when she has good reason to change her mind about an engagement? That's a sort of slavery I don't intend to enter."

"You served him right," said Miller, who had himself resented the young man's childish impetuosity and felt like slapping him for his impertinence. Adele shrugged her fine shoulders. "Let's not waste any more time talking about him," she said. "I was going to tell you how happy you made them all. When I read mother's description of their return home that night—how she went round looking at each object and touching it that she might realize it was hers again, and how father sat up till past midnight talking incessantly about it, and all the droll things Uncle Abner said—I cried and laughed by turns. I longed to see you, to tell you how I felt about what you did, and yet, now that I'm with you, all I say seems utterly weak and— inadequate."

"It seems wonderfully nice to me," Miller declared. "I don't deserve anything, and yet—well, I like to hear you talk." He laughed. "Whether I deserve it or not, I could listen to you for a week on a stretch."

In truth Rayburn Miller had never in all his varied social career become so suddenly and startlingly interested in any woman. It all seemed like a dream, and a most delicious one—the gay assemblage, the intermittent strains of the music, the touch of the stately creature on his arm, the perfume of her flowers, her hair, her eyes. He suddenly felt fearful of the passage of time, the leaving of his train, the approach of some one to claim her attention. He could not explain the spell she had thrown on him. Was it because she was his friend's sister and so automatically pretty, frank and sensible, or could it be that—

His train of thought was broken by the approach of Miss Ida Bishop, Adele's cousin, a rather plain girl, who with her scrawny neck and scant hair, which rebelled against being made much of, would have appeared to better advantage in a street costume.

"Oh, Adele," she cried reproachfully, "what do you mean? Do you know you have mortally offended Mr. Tedcastle? He had the march with you."

"And I asked him as a favor to excuse me from it," said Adele sharply. "I had just met Mr. Miller, who is to leave on an early train, and I wanted to talk to him about home. Have you been introduced? My cousin, Miss Bishop, Mr. Rayburn Miller."

Miss Bishop bowed indifferently and looked as if she still saw no justification in the slight under question.

"I'm awfully sorry," she said reprovingly. "Mr. Tedcastle has been as nice to you as he could be, and this is the way you show appreciation for it. I don't blame him for being mad, do you, Mr. Miller?"

"I'm afraid I'd be a prejudiced witness," she smiled, "benefiting as I am by the gentleman's discomfiture; but really I can't think that any circumstances could justify a man in pressing a lady to all an engagement when she chooses not to do so for any reason of hers."

"I know you'd say that," said Adele. "If anybody has a right to be offended it is I, for the way he has acted without waiting for my full explanation."

"Oh, that is a high and mighty course that will do better for novels than real life," disagreed Miss Ida Bishop. "The young men are badly spoiled here, and if we want attention we've got to humor them."

"They shall not be spoiled by me," declared Adele. "Why?" shrugging her shoulders contemptuously. "If I had to run after them and blind up their bruises every time they fell down I'd not appreciate their attentions. Besides, Mr. Tedcastle and his whole ilk actually put me to sleep. What do they talk about? Driving, pet dogs, flowers, candles, theater parties and silly bosh generally. Last Sunday Senator Hare dined at uncle's, and after dinner he and I were having really a wholesome sort of talk, and I was respecting myself—well, a little like I am now—when in trapped Teddy, with his hangers on. Of course I had to introduce them to the senator, and I felt like a fool, for he knew they were my 'company,' and it was impossible to keep them quiet. They went on with their baby talk just as if Senator Hare were being given an intellectual treat. Of course there are some grown up men in Atlanta, but they are driven to the clubs by the swarms of little fellows. There comes Major Middleton, one of the old regime. He may ask me to dance with him. Now watch. If he does, I'll answer him just as I did Mr. Tedcastle, and you shall see how differently he will treat it."

The major, a handsome man of powerful physique and a great shock of curly iron gray hair, approached Adele and with a low bow held out his hand.

"I'm after the next dance, my dear," he said. "You are one of the very few who ever dance with me, and I don't want to go home without it."

Adele smiled. "I'm very sorry, mafor," she said. "But I hope you'll excuse me this evening."

"Oh, that's all right, my dear child," he said. "No; don't explain. I know your reasons are all right. Go ahead and enjoy yourself in your own way."

"I won't my bet," Adele laughed. "Major, I knew so well what you would say that I bet on it." And then she explained the situation.

"Tedcastle ought to be spanked," said the major in his high keyed voice. "A girl who had not rather hear from home than spin around with him ought not to have a home. I'm going to mine rather early tonight. I came only to show the boys how to make my famous Kentucky punch."

When the major and Miss Ida Bishop had gone and left them together, Adele looked over the railing at the big clock in the office. "We have only a few minutes longer, if you are to take that train," she said regretfully.

"I never had as little interest in trains in my life," he said, and he meant it.

"Not in the trains on our new road?" she laughed.

"They are too far ahead to interfere with my comfort," he retorted. "This one is a steam nightmare."

"I presume you really could not miss it?" Her long lashed eyes were down.

He hesitated. The simple thought suggested by her thrilled him as he had never been thrilled before.

"Because," she added, "it would be so nice to have you come out tomorrow afternoon to tea, about 4."

He drew out his watch and looked at it waveringly.

"I could send a night message," he said finally. "I really don't want to go. Miss Adele, I don't want to go at all."

"I don't want you to either," he said softly. "It seems almost as if we are quite old friends. Isn't that strange?"

He restored his watch to his pocket. "I shall stay," he said, "and I shall call tomorrow afternoon."

Some one came for her a few minutes later, and he went down to the office and out into the street. He wanted to walk, to feel his body in action, keeping pace with his throbbing, bounding brain. His whole being was aflame with a fire which had never burned in him before.

"Alan's little sister," he kept repeating to himself. "Little Adele—she's wonderful, wonderful! Perhaps she may be the woman. By George, she is—she is! A creature like that, with that soul full of appreciation for a man's best efforts, would lift a fellow to the highest rung on the ladder of human effort. Alan's little sister! The idiot never told me, never intimated that she was—a goddess."

In his room at the hotel that night he slept little, his brain being so active with his new experience. He saw her the next afternoon alone over a dainty tea service of fragile china in a Turkish corner in William Bishop's great, quiet house, and then proposed driving her the next day to the driving club. He remained a week, seeing her under some pretext or other every day during that time. Sometimes it was to call with her on friends of hers. Once it was to attend a barbecue given by Captain Burton at a clubhouse in the country, and once he gave her and her cousin a luncheon at the Capitol City club, with a box at the matinee afterward. He told himself that he had never lived before and that somehow he was just beginning.

"No," he mused as he sat in his train homeward bound. "I can't tell Alan. I simply couldn't do it after all the rubbish I have crammed into him. Then she's his sister. I couldn't talk to him about her—not now, anyway."

To Be Continued.

CAUSES OF HAY FEVER

Hyomel The Only Cure—Gives Change of Climate in Your Own Home.

Fifty years ago hay fever had not been named, but undoubtedly people suffered then as they do now with storms of sneezing, profuse watering of the eyes, excessive running of the nose, intense smarting and itching and stuffed up feeling in the head.

The direct causes appear to be heat, dust and the pollen of flowers. Although hay fever may occur at any season of the year, it is most common and severe in August, and preventative treatment should be adopted some weeks before the time the disease is due.

Prior to the discovery of the remarkable effects of following the use of Hyomel, the only treatment that gave relief to hay fever sufferers was change of climate. The use of Hyomel enables anyone to breathe the air at home which is like that of the Oiltrondacks, the White Mountains, or other health resorts where healing balsams fill the air with nature's germ destroyer, ozone.

Those who are subject to hay fever should begin the use of Hyomel at once and thus prevent the disease. An ounce of prevention is worth a more than a pound of cure in the treatment of hay fever.

People's Drug Co., have seen the good effects following the use of Hyomel in all diseases of the respiratory organs, and are willing to sell Hyomel to any hay fever sufferer, with the understanding that if it does not give satisfaction, the treatment will cost nothing.

Theory vs. Practice. "Medical science has reached the point, boasted the optimistic young doctor, 'that for a patient to die we must take out his heart and kill it with a club.' On the way home he caught a cold and for the next three weeks made every one miserable listening to his symptoms.

Ask Your Doctor

He will tell you— That barley-malt is a half-digested food, as good as food can be.

That hops are an excellent tonic.

That the little alcohol in beer—only 3½ per cent—is an aid to digestion.

But Purity is Essential

But he will tell you that beer must be protected from germs, and brewed in absolute cleanliness.

He'll say, too, that age is important, for age brings perfect fermentation. Without it, beer ferments on the stomach, causing biliousness.

Schlitz beer is brewed with all precautions. It is the recognized standard all the world over, because of its purity.

SEEK HIDDEN WEALTH

EXPEDITIONS FITTED OUT TO RECOVER TREASURE.

Valuable Finds Made in the West Indies Have Stimulated Speculation—Authentic Instances of Finds of Immense Amounts.

A party of three, were chatting on the deck of a steamship during a voyage from Jamaica to Trinidad. The talk fell upon buried treasure in the West Indies, and each of us had his tale to tell.

A couple of months ago, said the first man, an American mining engineer, I was in New Providence, and everybody was talking about a mysterious American who had been down in the Bahamas just before.

He came in a small schooner, and anchored off one of the small cays, or islands, which are so numerous there. He said he hadn't come for sponges or coral or salt or pearls; but he would not tell anybody what he had come for.

One day he hired two men, and got a boat filled with tinned provisions, tools and a tent. Then he made them row him over to another cay about six miles off—a mere lump of coral and a few bushes, where nobody lives.

There he staid for a week, making the men dig like fury in place he pointed out, while he watched over them with a rifle to see that they did not shirk.

After six days' digging they came across a heavy, brass-bound trunk. They carried it to the boat and rowed him to the schooner. As soon as the box was aboard he weighed anchor, and nothing more was heard of him. Nobody knew his name or what he had found; but of course they all think that he had the clew to some pirate hoard, and found it.

When I was in Hayti, in 1898, said the second member of our party, a Canadian business man, I came across a curious treasure story. A poor man at Cape Haytien, who everybody knew had not got $100 to into a man of wealth, and went in for land speculation.

Presently the secret leaked out. The house he lived in was a ruined French chateau, dating back to the days when the French colonists occupied the island; a magnificent old ruin of the type one often sees in Hayti.

Sawing through the wainscoting one day to make some repairs, he came across a big oak chest filled with French gold pieces, gold and silver plate, necklaces, brooches, watches and other valuables. The box was worth about $15,000.

A wealthy speculator in Cape Haytien, hearing of his find, concluded there might be some more chests there, so he offered to buy the house, and eventually did so for $2,000.

The new man did more than search, he pulled down the house, and in the end found four other chests found altogether to be worth nearly $200,000. The first man got very angry, and wanted to share; but he came off badly.

The speculator had political influence, and soon had him hung into jail and despoiled of most of his wealth for the heinous crime of concealing treasure trove from the state. That speculator and his family to-day are among the richest people in Hayti.

I recounted a most marvelous, but perfectly true story told to me in Jamaica last year by the skipper of a turtling schooner from the Cayman Islands.

He was aboard the schooner one day last spring, anchored close to a reef near the Caymans on which a bark had been recently wrecked.

Looking over the side of his vessel, he saw a curious yellow gleam on the ledge of the reef, about eight feet under water. Thinking it was a large sheet of copper or brass, he ordered one of his crew to dive for it.

The man came up with his hands full of gold coins—Spanish doubloons, with the arms of Seville on them. The ledge was covered with loose gold.

The skipper showed me a lot of the gold in a store in Kingston, Jamaica, and sold the entire find soon afterward for over $10,000.

At this moment there are two or three expeditions—English and American—searching for buried treasure in various parts of the West Indies. The favorite hunting grounds are the Bahamas, from New Providence as far south as Tortuga and the Virgin Islands.—Chambers' Journal.

KEPT CHURCH PEOPLE AWAKE.

Mosquitoes Have Fun With a Missouri Congregation.

The New Jersey mosquito bears the reputation of being the most malicious and persistent of his species, but he seems to have a dangerous rival in some of Missouri extraction which have been operating at and about La Grange. "Mosquitoes have been unusually plentiful in La Grange during the last week," says the indicator, of that place. "They came near breaking up services at the various churches Sunday evening. The congregations that evening were the liveliest ever seen in La Grange. The young girls with short skirts were kept busy scratching their lower limbs; the ladies wearing thin waists gave their attention to their shoulders, while the men with scanty supplies of hair were entertaining their 'cousins' at luncheon on the tops of their craniums. It was quite amusing to hear the smack of some person whose Irish had been aroused by the bite of a mosquito, and who had landed on the intruder with a severe blow during the services."

PRINCE OF WALES GUEST OF FLEET

Takes Breakfast With Rear Admiral Cotton—Inspects The Kearsarge.

Portsmouth, July 14.—The prince of Wales was the guest of the American squadron here yesterday, and spent a couple of hours on board the Kearsarge.

The prince breakfasted with Rear Admiral Cotton, and all the ships in the harbor and the channel fleet at Spithead dressed ship, rainbow fashion, manned sides, and fired a royal salute as the prince boarded the American flagship.

During his tour of the Kearsarge in order to inspect the ship the prince of Wales changed from his full dress of admiral to a service uniform and went inside the forward turrets and saw how they worked. He climbed from the lower turret to the top, and then asked Captain Hemphill:

"Did Emperor William do this?"

Capt. Hemphill replied: "No, he never got so high."

From a spectacular point of view the visit was the finest incident during the visit of the squadron. When the signal was displayed from the Kearsarge: "Stand by to salute," the prince of Wales, in the uniform of a vice admiral, accompanied by Commander Sir Charles Cust, R. N. (retired), and the equestrian to the prince, Capt. Tyrwhitt, Lord Selborne, first lord of the admiralty, Ambassador Choate, Henry White, secretary of the American legation, and Second Secretary Carter, appeared at the railway jetty. The senior officers of the American squadron and the officers of the Kearsarge, all in full dress, and a guard of marines, assembled on the quarter deck of the flagship. A royal escort of 100 sailors from the gunnery ship Excellent immediately stood attention and saluted. The band struck up "God Save the King," and the union jack was replaced on the mainmast by the royal standard, with the prince of Wales' heraldic ensign. Then came the royal salute of thirty-one guns. This was replied to by every vessel in the harbor.

When the prince boarded the flagship he was received by Rear Admiral Cotton, Capt. Hemphill of the Kearsarge, and Lieut. Luby, owner of the deck. The party then proceeded below to a large cabin, where the breakfast was served. The prince of Wales sat on the right of Rear Admiral Cotton.

INSTITUTE IS IN MIDST OF REPAIRS

Annual Changes Being Made—Preparations for Manual Training Work.

Between twenty-five and thirty persons are now living at the state institute for the blind. Aside from the superintendent's family, which numbers five, the majority of these are part of the regular force of helpers in the various branches of work to be carried on about the institute.

As soon as the annual repairing is completed a number of these will leave.

The building is undergoing the thick of the repairs. They are principally like those repairs required every year—painting, calsoning, small carpentering, and similar routine renovations. The most decided change is in making ready for the establishment of a manual training department next year. The work will be carried on in the trades building, west of the main building.

Miss Eva Hehn, the new instructor in cooking and head of the culinary department, has arrived from her home in Detroit. She is early on the ground in order to familiarize herself with the work required in her department.

Supt. Showalter will remain in the city most of the summer except for occasional brief trips. Later on, when other institutes have opened for the fall term, Mr. Showalter will make a trip of the east comparing methods in the principal state schools.

HIBERNIANS WILL PICNIC IN AUGUST

Rockford, Beloit and Janesville Unite in Celebration At Ho-No-Ne-Gah Park.

In about one month the Ancient Order of Hibernians will rally for a glorious tri-city picnic. Rockford, Beloit, and Janesville members will all come together at Ho-No-Ne-Gah park for a day's celebration.

August 15 is the day set for the picnic.

Committees of members from the three lodges are already occupied in outlining the program. A good time is assured to those who spend the day at the park, say the members of the committees.

Jews Enjoy Liberty in Egypt.

It is said that nowhere in the old world do the Jews enjoy such a degree of liberty as in the country where their fathers were once slaves. This is probably because Egypt is subject to British rule. In Cairo there are five synagogues.

Stevenson's Dream.

MOTHER SAVES CHILD FROM BEAR'S CLUTCHES

Older Children Run From Bruin and Leave Babe to Its Mercy—Woman Uses Gun.

St. Joseph, Mich., July 14.—The brave act of a frightened mother under trying circumstances saved her child from a terrible death near Prescott, Mich. Mrs. Frank Gray, living a few miles east of Prescott, with her family of four children, was engaged in picking berries near her home when a large black bear put in his appearance, having journeyed into the open field from his hiding in the woods.

Fearing the animal, the three other children ran from the field into the house and left the baby seated under a tree. The bear had picked up the child and had started off with it when the frightened mother rushed to the house, seized a rifle and, taking aim, shot the animal dead. The child escaped with slight injuries, having only been hugged by the bear.

WOMAN IS GUILTY OF MURDER

St. Louis Jury Brings Verdict Against Mrs. Minnie Cummings.

St. Louis, Mo., July 14.—The sealed verdict of the jury read in court finds Mrs. Minnie Cummings, charged with killing her fourth husband, Dennis Cummings, April 10, 1902, guilty of murder in the second degree. The penalty was fixed at ten years in the penitentiary. Mrs. Cummings will on July 20 be tried for the alleged murder of her third husband, Edgar M. Harris, who died Oct. 5, 1901. His death was first termed suicide, but a later investigation, after the death of Cummings, led to an indictment charging murder in the second degree.

Women Do Mosaic Work.

GREATEST GOLD STRIKE IN COLORADO'S HISTORY

Ledge of White Quartz Filled With Native Metal Is Said to Run $1,000 to the Ton.

Gunnison, Colo., July 14.—What purports to be the greatest gold strike ever made in Colorado is heralded from Wamita Hot Springs in the Box Canyon district, twenty-eight miles east of Gunnison. A prospector of the name of Bluerman went into the district a few weeks ago and located the ledge from which gold has been washed into Hot Springs for years.

The report of the rich find has spread like wildfire and hundreds of prospectors are going to the region on horseback and in rigs day and night to locate mines.

The exact location of the claim is two and one-half miles northeast of Wamita, near the old Meyer ranch. The shaft is down from ten feet and shows a two and a half foot lead of white quartz literally filled with native gold. It is claimed that the ore runs $1,000 a ton.
